Will Drive Out Stock Fakers

Attorney General Ottinger Will Start a Campaign June 1 Against Dealers in Securities Not Complying With Requirements of Law.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Albany, May 4.—Attorney General Ottinger is planning a vigorous campaign against dealers in stock, bonds and other securities who fail to comply with the requirements of the Martin law, regarding the publishing of notices of intention to sell or solicit subscriptions for securities in this state. He has fixed June 1 as the dead line.

Provisions for the publication of intention to promote or sell securities was incorporated in the Martin law in an effort to enable the attorney general to suppress fraudulent stock promotions before any securities had been unloaded upon the public.

"Under a plan we have worked out," Ottinger said, "we will be able to check innumerable fraudulent stock promotions before the promoters or their agents can move. If crooked dealers fail to comply with the publication provisions of the Martin law, the state's agents, co-operating with local chambers of commerce, boards of trade and such official agencies as the Better Business Bureau, cannot fail to detect them. If they comply with the law the state will be able to investigate and determine the character of the securities they propose to sell."

"We have spread the dragnet over all sections of the state in an effort to bring to a halt the rampant and widespread fraud which net unscrupulous and villainous stock dealers and salesmen millions of dollars each year."

"Our aim is to drive the fakers from the state and nothing will be left undone to accomplish this."

"At this point let me warn the people against investing their money in any securities that have not been approved by their bankers, lawyers or some authoritative agency. The public is in a position to help us by refraining from placing money in questionable enterprises."

Mistake Causes Death of Two

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, May 4.—Mistaken identity was attributed by police today as the cause behind the attack of William Ashworth, British war veteran, on William C. Schwenk, champion oarsman, who was driving his automobile across Macomb's dam viaduct, which resulted in the death of two men when the machine crashed through the bridge railing, plunging 60 feet to the ground below.

Ashworth was walking home when a machine almost ran him down. Pantus Lyons, his companion, told police, Ashworth shouted after the car and the occupant stopped, punched Ashworth in the face and drove away.

When Schwenk drove by in a machine resembling the one driven by Ashworth's assailant, Lyons said, the war veteran jumped on the running board. There was a struggle and the car swerved through the railing and hurtled below.

Whitaker is charged with running an automobile while in an intoxicated condition, and Overt with public intoxication. It is stated that Whitaker "borrowed" a Studebaker car owned by a man named Deyo of this city without permission and with two white girls went on a joy ride. While driving through the cross road from Flatbush avenue to the Saengerstein road about 2 o'clock Sunday morning the Studebaker car collided with a Ford car, badly wrecking it. Future of Italy Under Mussolini Opposition to Mussolini "Wholly Political and the Country is Once More 'Sunny Italy'—Health and Policy of Mussolini.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, May 4.—Premier Mussolini is working 16 hours a day. He is more popular with the people than ever before. The opposition to him is "wholly political." The country is once more the "sunny Italy" both in thought and confidence in the future.

This was the "close up" of Italy presented to International News Service today by Luigi Barzini, editor of Corriere D'America and a friend of Mussolini, who has just returned to New York from Italy.

Barzini commented on the topics listed herewith:

Mussolini's health: "Mussolini was seriously ill. He recovered quickly, although he is still convalescing. His mental faculties are marvelous. Several weeks ago the Senate listened for several days to generals and army officials, who tried to explain the military reform bill. Then Mussolini summed it up in 30 minutes and made it so clear the Senate voted to have his speech posted throughout Italy, the first time such a thing has been done."

Mussolini's ailment: "He was suffering from what would have become a duodenal ulcer. Diet and medical treatment obviated an operation."

Mussolini's influence: "Conditions are progressing more rapidly in Italy than in any other European country because the people know Mussolini is working to improve their living conditions."

Mussolini and America: "He is a frank sincere admirer of America. I talked two hours with him in his home. He told me he admired America's resourcefulness and his youthful vigor. He attributed America's prosperity to its steadiness. He contrasted America, with its four years of government, with the European nations where the government may change any hour."

"Italy's attitude toward Americans: 'Of all the foreigners who visit Italy the American is the most welcome.'"

Mussolini's future: "Mussolini said to me, 'My purpose is not to keep power. My purpose is to put Italy on its feet. When this is accomplished I will hand over the government to any loyal and trustworthy man.'"

FORMER CROWN PRINCE INTERESTED IN ELECTION

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, May 4.—The former German crown prince, Frederick Wilhelm, made a mysterious visit to Italy a few days before the presidential election in Germany, said a dispatch from Rome today to the Morning Post.

His trip took him to the Tuscan village of Arezzo. The newspaper Risorgimento declared the purpose of the visit was to get the Roman Catholic Church to have the German Christian party support Von Hindenburg. He was told, the newspaper asserted, that the supreme authority in the church was opposed to intervention in German internal affairs.

The crown prince was said to have left Arezzo last Friday and to have started northward.

According to police, Ufret was one of three members of Gerald Chapman's gang who came to Canada to pass counterfeit money to aid Chapman, now under death sentence. Questions for State Census

New York State Census Enumerators Will Ask Thirteen Questions—New Question This Year Pertains To Naturalization.

FLORENCE E. S. KNAPP, Secretary of State.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, May 4.—Thirteen questions will be asked by the enumerators taking the New York state census, starting June 1, and continuing for fifteen working days. The questions will differ but little from those asked in the 1915 census, in fact the only new question to be asked this year pertains solely to naturalization. The questions were prepared by Florence E. S. Knapp, secretary of state, following several conferences, and have been grouped into what might be termed eight divisions.

The first question to be asked by the enumerators will be your residence, the street and number also to be jotted down.

The next question will be your name and every person will be included in the enumeration alive on June 1. Inasmuch as the census is taken as of June 1, those dying during the two weeks that follow after June 1 will not be counted. The whole idea is to get the exact number of persons residing in New York state on June 1.

The third division seeks the relationship of each person enumerated to the head of the family, such as the son, daughter, son-in-law, brother, etc.

In the fourth division, the color or race, sex, and age at last birthday of the person enumerated, will appear.

The seventh question concerns the nativity of the person enumerated with the name of the country where born appearing in the column.

Three questions are included in the division pertaining to one's citizenship. Answers are required covering the number of years in the United States, whether citizen or alien, and if naturalized, when and where.

Under the column headed by the word "occupation," there will be one question, as to the trade or profession or kind of work done by the person enumerated. This will be further classified in the following column as "employer" or "employee."

The last group deals with inmates in institutions where the person is required to give his residence at the time he was admitted to the institution. In this column will also be noted the residence of infants under one year of age.

The entire enumeration is to be taken by election districts with one enumerator to a district. Each enumerator will be furnished with a map and description of the district to be covered in order to prevent possibility of overlapping.

Figuring New York state's population at over eleven million persons, each enumerator will average about 1,500 persons, although in some districts this will run heavier and in others less, depending entirely upon the density of the population. Flushing thirteen questions to each person counted, each enumerator will gather statistics that will call for about 13,000 replies. The work of tabulating the results will be done at the state census headquarters in Albany.

Hospital Week at The Benedictine

Flag Raising and Appreciate Exercises on Mothers' Day to Mark Beginning of Hospital Week, Sunday, May 10—Babies Born There to be Guests at Party.

Throughout the United States, preparations are going forward for the observance of Hospital Week, which most appropriately will commence on Mothers' Day—Sunday, May 10.

Hospital Week will be observed at the Benedictine Hospital with exercises to which the public are cordially invited, to which invitation undoubtedly there will be a ready response, especially when it is recalled that Hospital Week was designed for the purpose of bringing the hospital and the public into closer relationship and understanding. In a social sense, it might well be called Hospital Old Home Week.

Flag Raising on Sunday.

Exercises at the Benedictine Hospital which will mark the advent of Hospital Week, will begin on Sunday, May 10, when there will be a flag raising at 2:30 p. m. The exercises will be held on the spacious lawn, music will be furnished by the Kingston Musicians' Union, and there will be addresses. The principal speaker of the day will be Judge William D. Cunningham. After the exercises the public are invited to visit the hospital.

A Party for Babies.

On Tuesday, May 12, the celebration at the Benedictine Hospital will consist of a party given to babies born within the institution during the past two years. The hospital will be open to visitors from 2 to 5 p. m.

Invitations have been issued to the mothers on behalf of the babies, but if through oversight some eligible guest has not been invited, it is requested that this announcement shall be considered as a cordial invitation to the party, which will be held from 2 to 4 p. m., and that it will be accepted.

The Ladies' Auxiliary will help the Sisters and the nurses attend to the reception of the distinguished little party members, and a group picture of the tots will be taken on the lawn.

The Modern Hospital.

The thoroughly modern hospital has become a standardized institution which would hardly be recognized by a person who was a hospital patient ten or more years ago. The best skill of medical science has been turned toward the hospital because the practitioner, whether specialist or engaged in general practice, recognizes the fact that the hospital facilities are far superior and accomplish results more effectively and quickly than is possible in the most elaborate and comfortable private home. The latest additions to equipment at the Benedictine Hospital, made possible by the recently completed addition to the hospital buildings, include the X-ray and fluoroscopic Department. Readers of The Freeman are familiar with the completeness of the Benedictine Hospital equipment, which was described in detail at the time the new addition was opened.

Nursing and Nurses.

The Benedictine Hospital School of Nursing also is indicative of the fact that the nursing profession has not been behind the medical profession in improving hospital service. From their own practical experience, nurses have aided in devising improved equipment, improved methods of caring for the sick and better service. The spirit of service which actuated Florence Nightingale is not dead, and on her mission of mercy she never had more followers, or of greater devotion than graduate nurses and nurses in training today.

Included in the Benedictine School of Nursing is a commodious and well equipped demonstration room where the practical side of the most modern scientific nursing is taught the student nurses. Then there is the diet kitchen, with its adequate facilities and instructors for teaching the best approved menus to be served, for it is a well recognized fact that diet must take its place with skillful medical care and nursing in the restoration of a patient's health. The diet kitchen of the Benedictine Hospital is used also by the student nurses of the Kingston City Hospital.

Visiting the Nurses' Home.

Before the survey is completed, the visitor at the Benedictine Hospital during Hospital Week celebration is asked to rest awhile in the reception hall of the Nurses' Home, and satisfy himself of the home comforts provided for the nurses. Their life, though one of sacrifice, is as far as consistent cared for and comfortable, adequate, "home" surroundings, all of which are invited in the highest degree in the Benedictine Nurses' Home.

A Closer Relationship.

The various agencies of the modern hospital display their interest in the patient's welfare and recovery all the way from the patient's room to the kitchen, and all are working harmoniously toward one end—prompt and permanent cure, and pleasant surroundings, in an atmosphere of proper rest and quiet where nothing effect has curative properties beyond calculation.

While these important characteristics can best be appreciated by the individual patient, they become apparent to the casual visitor, and a trip to the Benedictine Hospital cordially

Stored Food For Pheasants

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Albany, May 4.—Sportsmen in western New York adopted a system for zoning their counties to facilitate the work of feeding pheasants during periods of severe weather last winter when it was impossible for the birds to obtain their natural food, with excellent results.

In a report to the conservation commission, Inspector Morris W. Brackett, whose district includes the counties of Chautauque, Cattaraugus, Erie, Genesee, Niagara, Orleans and Wyoming, writes: "Although the pheasants had a very hard winter, we have a goodly number of birds left which I attribute to the splendid cooperation of the sportsmen in feeding. The sportsmen have started a new idea of zoning the counties where birds are found, and established storage places for food for the birds, the grain to be taken to these storages before the first snow. Then there will be no such thing as the impassability of the roads preventing the sportsmen distributing the food for the birds as the sportsmen in each zone will only have a short distance to go to reach the store of grain in their zone."

"During the severe snows, WGR, the federal radio station at Buffalo, has given us excellent cooperation in the matter of feeding birds and night after night sent out a call to assist in this work. I made a request that the station be advised by letter how much grain and grit the writer of each letter was putting out and how many birds they were feeding. Over 150 letters were received from interested parties all over this division who were feeding and two were received from sportsmen in Canada. It is very interesting to note that even people who were not members of game clubs, but were sportsmen, were interested to the extent of putting out food for the birds."

As pheasants are very hardy birds, it is only necessary to feed them at such times as their natural food is buried under deep snow.

Inspector Hamilton, whose district includes the counties of Allegany, Livingston, Monroe, Ontario, Seneca, Steuben, Wayne and Yates, reports similar cooperation on the part of the sportsmen in his district in feeding the pheasants. When the snow was so deep that it was impossible for the pheasants to get the required amount of feed, Inspector Hamilton wrote to all of the sportsmen's clubs, as well as the protectors, and sent articles to the newspapers appealing to everyone to do what they could to see that the pheasants were properly cared for until they could care for themselves. As a result the birds came through in fine shape. Inspector Hamilton heard of only five or six dead birds being found in his entire district and from appearances these were snowed in and smothered.

In his report to the commission, Inspector Hamilton writes: "In this division we were feeding at one time 23,000 pheasants in flocks ranging from 10 to 800. There was one flock on the Manitou Road of over 800 where they came out of the swales in that vicinity. I believe we have far more pheasants in this vicinity than we have had before at this time of the year."

State Building Below Last Year

New York City Reductions Bring State Building Below First Quarter of 1924—Majority of Cities Show Gains.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Albany, May 4.—Building in New York city is falling behind the record year of 1924. Permits issued in 20 cities of the state during the first quarter of this year are valued at 246 million dollars where for a similar period last year they reached 416 millions. While part of the difference between last year and this indicates a decided downward trend in construction activity, not all of it can be called an actual loss in building work. Part of it is explained by a different distribution of plans over the twelve months. In 1924, uncertainty about renewal of the house exemption law in New York city again crowded applications for permits into March, the month before the old law expired. In the current year tax exemption did not exert the same influence and instead of a peak in March with a sharp drop in April activity in New York city may be extended into the later spring months. The value of plans for the first quarter is about even with a three months average for 1924. This statement was issued today by Industrial Commissioner James A. Hamilton.

Majority of Cities Gain.
Outside of New York city, 12 of the 19 cities reported an increase over the preceding year. A few of the larger cities, Buffalo and Niagara Falls, were lower than in 1924. Rochester also lost but a comparison with last year is of little value because a tax caused many permits to be filed in February of that year which normally would have come in later months or even years.

New construction formed 93 percent of all the work for which permits were issued. Of this 66 percent was for residential projects. Plans for residential building amounted to 154 million dollars. Practically all of the large decrease from last year was limited to New York city, where there was a general slowing up in housing projects after three years of unusual activity.

Residential Work.
Manhattan was the only borough which did not fall behind 1924 in its first quarter and this was because commercial buildings here are the important class of construction. Permits were valued at 77 millions, about the same as a year ago. Plans for 10 hotels and several clubs accounted for 17 millions of the total and theaters were an important item. Public buildings were somewhat lower.

The other four boroughs of New York city showed the heaviest losses in one and two family houses and a much smaller loss in apartments. Brooklyn suffered most, after an unusually active season in 1924. Where work totaled 132 millions in the first quarter a year ago it now reached only 55 million. An interesting gain was in office buildings which passed the total of last year in the first quarter of 1925.

Queens and the Bronx reported permits were issued to the value of $44,000,000 and $35,000,000 respectively. In both boroughs more churches, places of amusement and factories were planned and in Queens the jump in office buildings from about $200,000 to $1,100,000 was significant of the development of industrial centers outside Manhattan. Residential construction fell off so sharply in Richmond that the total volume of work dropped to $2,600,000, 2-5 of last year's. Stores gained decidedly, however.

Plan More Houses.

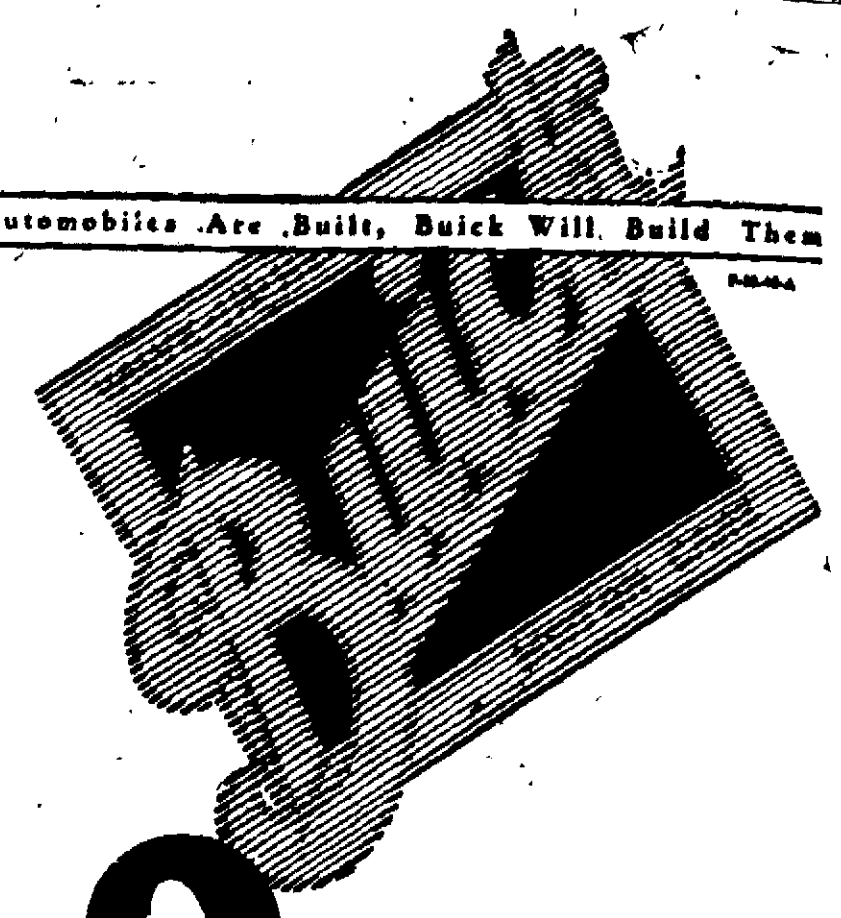

Of the four cities around New York, only one, Mt. Vernon, showed a decrease from last year. Here a drop in the number of two family houses and apartments planned brought the total for the first quarter down to $2,600,000. An important development was an increase in commercial and industrial buildings. Permits in Yonkers reached about five millions. Residential work was 40 per cent above that for the first quarter of 1924 which was in turn higher. Non-residential building increased also as plans for churches, one school, a number of mercantile buildings and three public garages were filed. White Plains and New Rochelle also reported greater activity in housing projects and mercantile buildings and their totals reached 12 millions and 20 millions, respectively.

Small Loss in Buffalo.

Buffalo had permits filed for almost six million dollars' worth of construction. Fewer houses were planned. An important item in building non-residential work up above last year was an amusement place valued at more than one million dollars. Work in Rochester passed $4,000,000, over 60 per cent of which was residential.

Syracuse and Binghamton were above the first quarter of 1924. Binghamton reported a total of over a million as plans for construction got under way earlier, and permits in Syracuse reached $1,400,000. Plans for public garages and important mercantile buildings brought non-residential work here to $480,000, about $300,000 more than in the corresponding period of 1924.

Miss Rogers Gained 15 Pounds in Six Weeks

Miss Rogers and Women Gain 15 Pounds in 30 Days on McCoys' Compound Tablets

My Dear Friends:

After my attack of Flu I was thin, run-down and weak. I had a hollow complexion, my cheeks were sunken and I was continually troubled with gas on my stomach. I felt stuffy and had lost my appetite. I had read about McCoys' Compound Tablets and decided to give them a trial. At once, I began to pick up an appetite, my cheeks filled out and my complexion became healthy looking and I gained 15 pounds in six weeks and am very thankful for what McCoys' Compound Tablets did for me. Miss Alberta Rogers, 244 W. 10th St., Decatur, Ill.

To take on weight, grow strong and vigorous, to fill out the hollow cheeks and neck, try McCoys' Compound Tablets for 30 days. 60 Tablets—50 cents at all five druggists everywhere. Felicity Easy to Acquire

If you cannot be happy in one way, be in another; this facility of disposition wants but little aid from philosophy, for health and good humor are almost the whole affair. Many run about after felicity, like an absent-minded man hunting for his hat while it is in his hand or on his head.

Club Made Pies Famous

The Kn-Cat was a club which flourished in London from 1700 to 1730. It met at the "Cat and Fiddle," kept by Christopher Cat, from whose name the pie, which were called "kn-cats," got its name.

	1925	1924
Utica	$1,284,000	$1,212,000
Schenectady	1,035,000	932,000

In Utica a plan for a hotel valued at $700,000 offset a loss in non-residential buildings. In Schenectady there was also a loss in non-residential work which was balanced by an increase in one and two family houses and apartments.

Albany was slightly above last year with $2,600,000 worth of permits filed in the first three months. Private garages, which were an important item in non-residential work in 1924, fell off this year. Factories showed an increase.

	1925	1924
Poughkeepsie	$304,000	$249,000
Jamestown	$59,000	404,000
Lockport	173,000	40,000

In Poughkeepsie, the increase was not all new construction. There was a plan for a hotel which accounted for part of it but an addition to a hotel and several large repairs on residential buildings were also important.

CHILDREN 90 YEARS AGO.

The imperious, "emancipated," self-governed, joy-riding youngsters of today will recoil from with horror and vote as barbarous the severity and thoroughness in the management and education of children in England 99 years ago, as described by Lord Haldane's mother, who was 100 years old on April 9. In that age even the children of the prosperous and high-placed had to be respectful to their elders, speak only when spoken to, learn hard lessons and submit to severe punishment for any infraction of the rules. A girl cousin "was locked up in a barn and fed on bread and water." A boy cousin came home from school "black and blue from bruises inflicted by the cane, and a companion of his lived for three days up a chimney in hiding." Mrs. Haldane herself was sometimes "shut up in a garret." She like the others began the day by being plunged overhead in a cold bath. She learned to read at the age of three years. "The multiplication table and French verbs were repeated whilst holding a back-board, and with our feet in the stocks, which were made by the joiner." Later on:

When just eight or ten years of age I read through Voltaire's history of Louis XIV and Peter the Great, and looked up all the French words I did not know and wrote them out. A little later there was read aloud to us Hume's and Smollett's history, as well as Buchanan's, Rollin's and others; likewise Mitford's "Greece," while in the evenings my father read aloud Milton's "Paradise Lost," Cowper's "Task," and Dryden's works. With an Italian master we read the works of Tasso and Metastasio. Our education was good, inasmuch as we read classical works and not text-books.

What she read in that period and under such circumstances, says Mrs. Haldane, "has remained in my mind to this day." No wonder.

OUR INDIAN "NATIONS."

The claim that a small body of Indians, mostly of mixed blood, living within the territory of New York State constitute an entirely separate nation, owing no allegiance to either the State or the Federal government, has a strange sound in these times, yet a case before the Supreme Court involving the disposition of the property of two Seneca Indians makes this claim. The claim is based on the treaty signed with the six nations at Canandaigua in 1794, and there is further foundation for the claim in other similar treaties with Indian tribes in the earlier times. The remnant of the Senecas actually denounce the interference of the New York State government as the unfriendly act of an alien power and characterize it as an unjustifiable consequence of the infringement on their lands by alien colonists of European origin.

The outcome of the litigation remains to be seen, but meanwhile all this sounds rather ridiculous to the crowding whites now in triumphant possession of a continent. Yet it is quite true, as the historical records show, that the government of the United States dealt with the Indian tribes it was not actually exterminating as separate nations, making treaties with them that were formally ratified by the Senate, and Chief Justice Marshall declared the six nations to have the status of "domestic dependent nations." Inevitably the situation gradually changed, and even the reservation Indians were granted citizenship last year, but these now protesting before the Supreme Court can cite much history in support of their claims.

The President tells the reporters who meet him twice a week—according to the reporters—that they must never quote him directly and are free merely to give as their authority a "statement from the President." This would account for the fact that practically all expressions from the White House are attributed to such a "statement." What the press is said to reject is the unauthoritatively right to declare "unauthorized" any expression attributed to a "statement."

Pedro Colum, the Irish poet, says Lenny Benda is largely to blame for the materialism of the age "because it quenched oil and put so much light into houses that no one could tell stories any more," there being "no story magic left, no rush candles or turf fires." Tallow dips and peat fires may be more stimulating to the poetic imagination, but the one is pretty hard on the eyes and the other no very good insurance against pneumonia.

FALSE PLEURISY

During the cool months it is not unusual for the family physician to be called in to a case of "pleurisy," so called.

The chest muscles are quite sore, and the movement of the arms in any direction, the movement of the chest in breathing, is extremely painful.

The physician by the use of his stethoscope, notes the absence of any "friction rub," which would be present in pleurisy, tells the patient that there is no cause for anxiety, as the trouble is really on the outside of the chest, that is simply in the muscles themselves.

The lining of the chest wall, and the covering of the lungs—the pleurae—are not affected at all.

What is this trouble called?

Well it is called "false pleurisy," pleurodynia, muscular rheumatism, myalgia (inflammation of the muscles,) and perhaps some other names.

What has happened?

Something has got into the system that has made a direct attack upon the fibrous coverings of the muscle fibres, and the fibres which attach the muscles to the bones.

That means that every movement of these muscles, gives a pull on these fibres, and the nerves supplying the muscles fibres, and hence the pain.

Most cases can be traced to over-exertion and then exposure to draughts, cold air, or dampness.

There may be some specific cause, but it has not been discovered as yet.

Now although this false pleurisy is not dangerous, it is very troublesome, and requires real care and treatment.

Many physicians treat the case as they would pleurisy by putting the patient to bed, and strapping up the chest with adhesive tape so as to limit the amount of movement in the muscles.

Heat in any form is indicated, and so the hot water bag, hot poultices, or the ordinary plasters are used.

Now is the season to serve PRUNES!

And this is the way to buy GOOD PRUNES

The Springtime diet calls for plenty of fruit—especially for breakfast. On the proper balance of that meal depends much of your efficiency throughout the day.

Nearly all breakfast foods, such as eggs, cereals, meats, etc., are highly concentrated—rich in nutriment, but lacking in the bulk and body needed to keep them moving through the alimentary canal.

That's why it is so important to start breakfast right. Begin with Prunes—the fruit that takes first choice with so many eminent doctors and dieticians.

As a breakfast fruit, Prunes are in a class by themselves. They have all the natural body and tender fruit tissue—plus the mild, delicate flavor that enables you to eat them in generous enough quantity to provide the proper breakfast balance.

And Get the Best Prunes!

Serve Prunes often now—and be sure you get "Sunsweet," California's finest Prunes—not only because they are so good to eat—not merely because they are so really good and healthful for you—but also, because they are one of the most economical fruits you can put on your table.

Ask your grocer for SUNSWEEP PRUNES—sweet, plump, thin-skinned fruit, from the famous orchards of California—grown, selected and packed by the growers themselves. Protect yourself! Buy SUNSWEEP PRUNES, always clean and fresh, in the convenient, new 2 lb. carton—or in bulk, from the regular 25-pound box. You will be delighted with their uniform high quality.

Any of These Silhouettes Are Approved This Springtime.
THAT NANNISH MODE

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

When the smart and not so smart things, launched for our approval, begin to be worn, we gain or lose confidence in style prophets. There has been much ado about mannish types, but from all indications the mannish have been more than justified.

When the races ran at Longchamp for that first day — which is so important in the dress world — it was found that the world and his wife on their clothes more or less on the same lines, and often from the same cloths.

Navy blue was a decided winner —
which was to be expected — but it was usually enlivened with a bouton-niere, a glimpse of bright lining, or some accessory.
The topcoat, in double-breasted effect, and the short-jacketed suit, in the same effect, seem to be preferred. Longchamp perhaps tipped the scales in favor of the complete suit — an O'Rourke conception which when smartly worn, is very smart indeed. Paris preferred the jacket to be black or navy, and the skirt light or of a novelty mixture, and, of course, hat, gloves and other accessories carried out the color of the skirt.

Miss America seems to show a preference for pinkish beige shades, known variously as corn husk, or blonde — this being especially true in topcoats which boast velvet collars.

Many Names Bestowed
on Species of Duck

A study of the local names of American ducks leads one to believe that our citizens delight to invent names for the species in which they take interest. In almost any region names for certain birds can be found that are not used elsewhere. Hence it is possible to collect rather long lists of names for birds that attract popular attention. For instance, 32 local names are known for a single species of wild duck, the ruddy. In this case, as in others, some of the names have a touch of humor or local color that renders their study a pleasure.

The ruddy duck, for instance, has such appellations as honey, dumb bird and sleepy head, because it is slow to take alarm; and others like head band, leather breeches and short pouch, because on often it safely emerges from a perfect rain of shot. It has various derogatory nicknames, among the wildest of which are dinky, dicker-dick and fool duck, says Forest and Sims.

BOTH MODERNISTIC AND
ANTIQUE JEWELRY

(By Eleanor Gunn)

As all the world knows there are fashions in jewelry, as in all other things. Curiously enough, just now, ultra-modern or costume jewelry of pearls larger than peas and of every conceivable tint as well as old-fashioned jewelry—even to strands of beads of tiny seed pearls—are both permitted. Paradoxical as it sounds the older the design, the newer it is.

These Mitts Were Taken Out of an Old Chest.

While chokers are much in vogue, so are other necklaces, which is a blessing, since a short-necked woman only emphasizes her deficiencies when she adds a choker or dog collar, though both are very smart.

Some of the Newer Necklaces.

Along with other old-fashioned necklaces comes the movement to reinstate the mitt, and a very curious one it was. The mitts sketched were brought to this country from abroad early in this century. The back of the hand is a mesh fabric while the inside of the palm is of heavier material. The steel beads form a delicate trimming as finish. They are intended for evening wear.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale
BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

SHOEBILL'S SMARTNESS

Billie Brownie, as you know, was given permission by Mother Nature to talk to all of her children and to understand what was said by them, as well as having them understand Billie Brownie.

He had been wanting for some time to visit the Shoebill which had arrived from Africa some time before and which had taken up its residence in the zoo.

So, one morning, bright and early, while the dew was on the grass and the birds were singing their early morning concert, Billie Brownie packed a little lunch of Brownie sandwich, and started forth for a day's trip.

He expected to call on some other besides the Shoebill, so that it was well to have some food with him, as he might get very hungry before night came.

He had some nuts and bananas and other good things to give to some of the animals and he had them in a paper package.

He put both of these packages in the knapsack he wore over his back when he went on trips, and started out.

So, as soon as he reached the zoo, he went to call on the Shoebill.

"I will have to get around to the other side of your face," said Billie Brownie, "to see your other eye."

Then, when he got around to the other side of Shoebill's face it seemed as though he were still being looked at out of one eye of the Shoebill's.

"Your face is so long," said Billie.

The Shoebill didn't seem to mind that in the least. As a matter of fact, Billie hadn't meant to say just that, but in going from one side of the Shoebill to the other it had seemed quite a natural thing to say.

Of course Billie knew that the animals were rather proud of all their unusual points, but he didn't know the

He Went to Call on the Shoebill.

Shoebill well at all and he didn't quite know what made a Shoebill pleased and what made him mad.

"I beg your pardon, Shoebill, if I have offended you," Billie Brownie said.

"Needn't beg pardon," said the Shoebill, "for I'm not offended. Old Grandfather Shoebill used to say is as back in our African home."

"Don't get offended, Shoebill. It only causes you to feel unhappy, and being unhappy when you don't need to be unhappy is a waste of beautiful, beautiful time."

"So I try to keep my grandfather's advice in mind."

"I'm glad to be cheered up," said Billie Brownie, "as I've been a little sad today."

"I met a tattle-tale child on my way here and a tattle-tale child always makes a Brownie very sad."

"I'll tell you a jolly story," said Shoebill. "My beak is a great, long peak as you can see."

"It's somewhat the shape of a shoe as you can also see, and as you've heard before, I mean that you know that is the reason why we have such a family name."

"Now I have a jolly reason why I think we got that name. Of course it is only my little reason and so don't put it down as natural history."

"Whatever else I've told you is so— we do come from Africa and we're named Shoebill because our beaks look something like a shoe. But when I tell you my own jolly reason it is only my own little story to cheer you up."

"I think that there came a time when news even reached Africa about the price of shoes."

"Fathers were worried, mothers were worried, everyone was worried."

"The price of children's shoes," they kept hearing it all the time and it said a sound they didn't like. So they said, 'Let's all of us look like a shoe and always have our shoe with us. Then we'll always have something to show when people try to frighten us with the price of shoes for children.'"

"You don't need shoes of course, but people may try to upset us by talking about such things and we'll always have a shoe for every member of the family and a bill at the same time which belongs to us and which we can use in at the first of the month."

Billie Brownie laughed and the Shoebill winked his eye. "I cheered you," he said brightly.

FOR LUNCHEON OR SUPPER

When there are bits of leftover chicken (not enough for a meal) prepare it by cutting it into small pieces, add it to a white sauce and a cupful of cooked celery.

Serve on rounds of buttered toast.

If a little more celery and chicken are used a nice escalloped dish, may be prepared, using plenty of white sauce.

Any portions of leftover lamb roast, cut fine, mixed with equal parts of fresh celery, adding salad dressing, served on lettuce, makes a good salad.

Milk toast is always in season and is most popular with everybody. Prepare the toast just before serving—serve it golden brown and hot. Dip the edges into hot water, butter and lay in a deep platter or chop plate. Prepare a good rich white sauce, using two tablespoonfuls of butter, two of flour and a cupful of good rich milk. Two cupfuls will be needed for a large dish of toast. Plenty of butter on the toast makes a great difference in the taste. If liked, a little grated cheese may be sprinkled over the toast.

Salt or fresh fish chowder is another popular dish. Then there are the well-known codfish balls.

Cold boiled ham can be used in so many good dishes. Chop it and add to a white sauce, cover fried lamb chops, roll in egg and crumbs and fry in deep fat. Serve hot. The chops should stand to chill before dipping and frying.

Escalloped potatoes sprinkled generously with minced ham and baked, will be enjoyed.

Boiled dinner hash is a delicious dish, or plain hash prepared in mounds, with an egg poached and placed on each.

A few leftover creamed mushrooms, or cold hard-cooked eggs, finely chopped, added to scalloped potatoes, makes a nice change.

First Dutch Women Banquet

If possible this year's banquet held by the women of the First Reformed Dutch Church at the Hotel Stuyvesant was even more of a success than that of last year. On Saturday there were more than one hundred and twenty-five women present, consequently there were one hundred and twenty-five or more good times. The large dining room looked most attractive with its small tables seating eight at each table and having for the decoration either a small basket or vase of pink roses buds and carnations. When these tables were surrounded with smiling faces and becoming and handsome spring millinery, the picture was a delightful one. Directly behind the speakers' table, on the large buffet stood a radio receiving set bearing the letters I. C. U. That kept everybody wondering. Then nothing the place cards, a tiny Peter Rabbit (the gift of Mrs. Hewitt Borce) bearing a diminutive I. C. U. radio box, there was more wonderment. But Peter Rabbit bore more than the radio box; he bore the menu, which was as follows:

Beef au Gratin
Hudson River Shad
Delmonico Potatoes
Sliced Cucumbers
Queen Olives Gherkins
Salted Almonds
Roast Capon, Cranberry Sauce
Mashed Potatoes New Asparagus
Tomato Salad
Cheese and Wafers
Crushed Strawberry Ice Cream
Assorted Cakes
Demi Tasse

It was a most delicious repast, served faultlessly.

When the guests had all assembled, Mrs. Hyman Roosa, president of the Ladies' Aid Society, asked Mrs. Billings to offer thanks before the feast.

Throughout the meal, and particularly while the courses were being served, there was hearty community singing, led by Miss Estey, secretary of the Y. W. C. A., with Mrs. Chidester at the piano. Frankly, the ladies of the First Dutch Church did some very peppy singing.

Mrs. Roosa introduced the toast-mistress for the afternoon, Mrs. Steiner, "who always said the right thing at the right time in the right place," according to Mrs. Roosa, and her description of Mrs. Steiner proved to be quite accurate.

Mrs. Steiner said, in greeting the guests, that having lived through winter, that ice and snow and cold; the men's dinner, and "The Twig of Thorne," even the first symptoms of spring housecleaning, the first week of May was finding the women of the First Dutch Church ready for their "Maying" together. Then the toast-mistress explained the radio mystery. It was that a new radio had just been put on the market, a Chidester-Stelner Radio, the stock for which would later be ready for sale in the vestibule of the hotel.

Also there was about to be opened, a new broadcasting station, F. R. D. C. This radio was guaranteed not to get out of order. It was named the "I. C. U. Radio," because it would be possible to see as well as hear the speakers and performers.

The first thing to be broadcast was a series of short songs—quite original—complimentary descriptive of the Ladies' Aid Society, of which Mrs. Roosa was the president; the Missionary Societies of which Mrs. W. N. Fossenden is president; the Henrietta Wynkoop Guild which gave the "Twig of Thorne"; the Sunday School, for which Mrs. Chidester responded herself; and finally "The Little Go-To-Church League, Miss Van Hoevenberg in charge and the Y. P. S. C. E. This group of songs was splendidly sung by Mrs. Benjamin Johnston, soprano soloist of the church who lent to the songs the full force of her art and lovely voice.

After singing of a paraphrase of The Battle Hymn of the Republic with the chorus, "First Reformed Dutch Church," by Mrs. Johnston and the assembly, the official announcer, though somewhat disturbed by the status, announced the first number as a "Travelogue," by Mrs. T. D. Lewis. Mrs. Steiner enlarged upon the announcement to the extent of assuring all present that Mrs. Lewis is a staunch American in spite of her wandering propensities, and has believed in "feeling America first," for she has visited Port Ewen, Esopus, other lands in the U. S. A. besides crossing the ocean. Mrs. Lewis then gave an intimate and very interesting account of her recent visit to Holland: The Hague; Leyden; Amsterdam, and other points of note which she described briefly but photographically. From Holland Mrs. Lewis went to England; via London to Dartmouth and Devonshire, where she was a guest in two homes of cousins of the Rev. Dr. Baragwanath. That part of her trip was especially delightful. It was Mrs. Lewis's good fortune to be paying her return ticket to London during the Wembley Exhibitions, a sort of passport of the colonies of the British Empire not unlike a glorified Chicago World's Fair. Mrs. Lewis also visited Scotland and returned on a Scotch vessel after a thoroughly charming trip.

The announcer then stated that Mrs. Johnston would sing "Spring Arise, Arise," the music for which as well as for "Little Heads in the Row," was composed by Mrs. Chidester. Right after the applause following this appropriate and appreciated song, one of the hotel bell boys brought Mrs. Steiner a couple of telegrams. They proved to be from Judge G. D. B. Haskin and Henry Van Dyke, who were in the city, were greatly enjoying the program.

Again Mrs. Steiner had to elaborate upon the announcement that "The Next Number will be a group talk on the subject of 'Women' with Mrs. William M. Davis, the first speaker," to tell the other women of the splendid team work of all of the women at the speakers' table, especially of Mrs. Davis's great kindness in consenting to speak in the place of Mrs. Baragwanath, who could not do so because of illness. Mrs.

Davis had for her subject, "The Women," whom she said had always been talked about in spite of the lines, "Because there is so much good in the worst of us and so much bad in the best of us, it does not behoove any of us to talk about the rest of us." Mrs. Davis told humorously of the derivation of the woman; told of world heroines and of the crowning glory of womanhood in Mary the Mother of Christ; of the American woman and such women martyrs as Madam Currie, closing with the lines, "That Country is the fairest that is inhabited by the noblest minds."

Just then more complimentary telegrams were received from Judge A. T. Clearwater and from the collector of the port of New York, Philip Elting.

The announcer after a short struggle with static, gave Miss Lillias Nelson as the next speaker, and her subject, "The Woman in the Home." With the light touch of humor and the fervent note of appreciation of motherhood and the sacredness of the home, Miss Nelson closed her few fitting words with the feeling quotation, "There is no place like home."

The next speaker on "Woman," was Miss Margaret Loughran, who had somewhat to say on "The Woman in the Church," and said it in a quaint little story—radio story, if you please—for the big girls present, of "Prudence, Patience, Penelope and Priscilla," who, after all were only prototypes of the women who uphold the hands of the church today.

Finally Mrs. Edgar N. Palen spoke on "The Woman in the Community." The women's club movement, Mrs. Palen designated as a sociological phenomenon, and then lest she be not making her idea quite clear she "explained" just what a phenomenon was according to the colored parson. Having used the word in a sermon and being asked as to its meaning, he later told his congregation its meaning, as follows: "If you see a cow in a field, dat ain't no phenomenon. Neither is a thistle growing in that field. No, nor if you heard a canary bird singing on a branch of de tree, dat ain't no phenomenon. But if you see dat cow in the field sittin' on a thistle, singing like a canary bird, dat ain't no phenomenon." Having held this mirror up to the women, Mrs. Palen continued by telling of women in welfare, educational and civic work for the betterment of all living in the community.

After the reading of a beautiful and appropriate little poem, "Heritage," by Lytton Cox, by Mrs. Steiner, telegrams were received from Admiral Higginson and from South America—the Prince of Wales, who seemed to fully appreciate the excellence of the program.

The toastmistress then gave the one toast of the afternoon, to "A friend to all of us and in every home in his parish; a lover of little children; a wise counselor and sympathetic listener to the life stories of his parishioners; an inspiring teacher who never sends his students away empty; who hides his own burdens in order to help carry those of others; their commander-in-chief; a Christian gentleman; their beloved minister, the Rev. Lucas Borce, and with like tribute to his wife—Mrs. Borce. In clear, sparkling, Celtic mountain water, the toast to Mr. and Mrs. Borce was drunk by all, standing.

"To sum up all these things," was the delightful task of Mrs. Hyman Roosa, who did so most gracefully, paying just tribute to the toastmistress and all who had in any way contributed to making such a success of the afternoon. With the singing of one verse of Auld Lang Syne, the banquet of 1923 passed into history and pleasant memory.

Six Companies Incorporate Here

During Month of April Six Companies Incorporated in Ulster County With Total Capitalization of $285,000—April's Business Sets Record.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, May 4.—Nineteen more companies to manufacture radio sets or parts incorporated and embarked in business in New York state last month, according to an announcement made today by Florence E. S. Knapp, secretary of state, and head of the corporation bureau. There were 31 motion picture companies incorporated during the past month, while garment-making claimed 43 of the month's total with real estate and construction companies leading by no less than 559 companies.

All records in the corporation bureau from the standpoint of receipts for a single month, were broken by April's business, the receipts reaching a new high of $521,226, or $93,718 over the highest previous month. Up to May 1, a total of 7,946 companies incorporated in New York state for the four months, or 480 more than during the same period last year. Outside of the metropolis, Erie county led the rest of the state last month with 44 companies, Westchester being second with 52 and Nassau third, with 42 companies.

In Ulster county, six companies having a total capitalization of $285,000, incorporated last month.

Common Council Meeting.

All women of Kingston interested in good government in this their home town, are reminded of the regular meeting of the Common Council at the city hall Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, and whether or no they have attended before they are asked to do so tomorrow evening as several matters of importance will come up for consideration.

Certificate of Incorporation.

Among certificates of incorporation filed with the secretary of state is one by Miller & Sherry Theatres, Kingston, motion pictures. Capital $2,000. I. P. & E. Sherry are the incorporators. L. Miller, Brooklyn, is the attorney.

Davis had for her subject, "The Women," whom she said had always been talked about in spite of the lines, "Because there is so much good in the worst of us and so much bad in the best of us, it does not behoove any of us to talk about the rest of us." Mrs. Davis told humorously of the derivation of the woman; told of world heroines and of the crowning glory of womanhood in Mary the Mother of Christ; of the American woman and such women martyrs as Madam Currie, closing with the lines, "That Country is the fairest that is inhabited by the noblest minds."

Just then more complimentary telegrams were received from Judge A. T. Clearwater and from the collector of the port of New York, Philip Elting.

CAUGHT USING NETS.

Three Fishermen Pay $15.00 For Violating the Law.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, May 4.—Several complaints were received of late by the Conservation Commission of illegal netting in the waters of the Mohawk River at night; also in Crescent Lake, where the use of nets is prohibited at all times. As licensed nets cannot be operated in the Mohawk River at night, Inspector C. A. Johnston, detailed Game Warden Charles D. Frier from Schenectady county and Robert J. Nickerson of Albany county to make investigation of complaints and try to apprehend the violators.

After watching for several nights the protectors caught three men using a two hundred foot seine in Crescent Lake near Mohawk. View. The men caught had been started by the protectors to operate nets in the Mohawk River. The net fishermen used a boat which they filled with water as soon as they had completed their work to make it appear that the boat was unfit for use. Early in the morning of April 25, the protectors discovered the net fishermen coming ashore with their boat and watched them unload their fish and net and carry them to the backbay, where they were waiting for an automobile to come and take their fish to Schenectady. As the fishermen were loading their fish and nets, the protectors seized both men and nets and arrested the men.

The defendants were arraigned before Judge Charles Valentine, Justice of the Peace of the Town of Clinton, and settled their liabilities for $15.00 each. The protectors collected 11 fish and took the fish to the Clinton County Home in Schenectady.

One of the men and a 10 foot, jointed seine, in violation of the law by netting at night and using nets in Crescent Lake, where their use was prohibited and as they were caught.

Troop 10 Won Warren Cup

One of the most interesting boy scout demonstrations ever seen in Kingston was the "Fire by Friction" contest held at the Armory in connection with the Boy Scout dance and entertainment.

After a short explanation as to how the fire making sets were made and how they operated, four of the boys who were entered, two boys from Ellenville failed to appear. The contest was won by Troop 10, Kingston, Edward J. Luedtke, Scoutmaster. On the word "go" all started blowing and in remarkably short time three of the scouts were busy blowing the little spark that had fallen into the tinder. Although Fox had his spark first, he was unable to get a flame until after Mohr's tinder had burst into flame.

The contest ended with Troop 10 winning the "Warren" Fire by Friction Cup and the following scouts winning a place:

John Mohr—1st, winning a scout uniform given by S. Cohen's Sons.
Chester Fox—2nd, winning a scout cooking outfit.
William Nelson—3rd, winning a scout knife.

Any troop in the county can challenge Troop 10 for the cup within 90 days, three wins by a troop and they take permanent possession of the cup or if the troop is not challenged within a year the cup stays with the troop holding possession.

Mr. Luedtke deserves a great deal of credit, as he has worked hard to bring them up to their present standing. This troop also had an excellent display of handcraft which was very favorably commented on.

CURRENT OFFERINGS

AT THE THEATRES

Keeney's Theatre offers something very unusual in the way of entertainment all this week. The photoplays will be changed three times during the week, opening today with Richard Dix in David Belasco's play, "Men and Women." The Keeney news weekly, a lively comedy featuring the world famous monkey and his cute little animal friends, and the special attraction—billed as a most beautiful offering. A musical comedy with seven pretty girls, "The Seven Brown Girls," presenting a program of musical numbers that has proven a real treat wherever they have appeared. They will appear at every performance and anyone wishing any special musical number that would be appreciated, kindly send them in to Miss Brown, who will be only too pleased to give Kingston music lovers anything that would please them. A new photoplay will be programmed on Wednesday and another one for Friday, each picture running only two days.

The vaudeville offering at the Kingston Opera House gives a varied program of acts. Young and Young, just pep and music; Helene and Ford, in songs; Timm and Betty, in a whole lot of fun "Tomfoolery"; George Lilly and his peppy monologue, and closing the bill with "Fantasies," a beautiful musical comedy revue of song and dance and an ocean of confetti. The photoplay is William Desmond and his famous ranch-riders in "The Burning Trail." The shows will be given on daylight saving time.

Tonight at the Auditorium the feature picture, "The Empty Saddle," featuring Pete Morrison, will be screened.

Thrills such as the biggest battle scenes never gave, or the most exciting scenes of chase or race evoked, are provided by the simplest possible scenes of lowly lovers in D. W. Griffith's "Isn't Life Wonderful," which opens at the Orpheum today for a run of three days. The country's leading critics have declared that this film contains more laughs and more tears than all the comedies and thrillers ever put upon the screen.

Carol Dempster and Nell Hamilton head the cast, which includes Helen Lowell, Marcia Harris, Erville Alderson, Frank Puglia, Lupino Lane and several Continental actors. Also Harold Lloyd in "Hot Water." Funny? You'll shriek with joy. Why you can't know what fun is until you've seen this cyclone of comedy.

THE SANDMAN STORY

VAIN RED ROSE

ONE morning in a garden there was a little Dewdrop that wanted to get away from the sun's hot breath that it might stay in the garden all day, so it nestled close to a beautiful red rose and whispered: "Hide me, beautiful Rose, in the soft petals of your lovely gown."

"The Rose was very vain and thought only of her own beauty, so she told little Dewdrop to creep close inside and nestle in her heart, for she wanted to keep it until moonlight flooded the garden, when her lover the nightingale would come to sing to her his love song.

Away down deep in her heart crept little Dewdrop, thinking that Red Rose must love it to let it rest in her heart and that when night came it would shine on one of the beautiful red petals of the rose and they would be the most admired of all the garden folks.

But it did not know the cold, vain heart of the beautiful rose and all day long she kept Dewdrop from peeping once into the garden, as it longed to do, for fear of losing the jewel she wished to adorn her beauty at night.

By and by when the moonlight crept into the garden and made it almost like day the big red rose opened and told Dewdrop to rest upon one of her soft petals.

"Tonight I shall be the loveliest rose in the garden, for I can see that none of my sisters wears a jewel. How fortunate you are, little Dewdrop, to have me near you!"

Just then the sweet tones of the nightingale's love song filled the garden and Red Rose awayed a little in the breeze that her jewels might sparkle in the moonlight and make her more beautiful in the eyes of her lover.

When the nightingale flew closer and told the vain rose she was indeed the most beautiful rose in the garden she tossed her proud head and down tumbled the poor little dewdrop to the ground.

"Now see what you have done!" said the angry rose. "After I sheltered you all day you repay my kindness in this way? Never a word did she ask about the poor little dewdrop that lay trembling on the ground below."

"Rose, dear Rose," cried the dewdrop, "do bend over and help me to rest again on your soft cheek!"

"Bend over, indeed," replied the rose. "Why, you foolish thing, I might break my slender stem. You have spoiled my evening by tumbling off and you expect me to help you?"

"But don't you love me, Rose, dear?" asked the dewdrop, who had been all day close to her heart and had grown to love her deeply.

"Love you?" exclaimed the vain rose. "Why, you silly little drop, I only saved you from the sun that you might make me more beautiful at night when the nightingale came to sing to me."

The nightingale had ceased his singing and had heard what the vain rose said, so he flew down to the dewdrop and gently lifted it in his bill and carried it to another rose more fragrant than Red Rose but not so beautiful.

Into the very heart of the pale pink rose the nightingale dropped the dewdrop. "Here you will find sweetness that will be worthy of your love," said the nightingale. "Here will I come each night and sing my love song, for the red rose has no heart for love. It is filled with vanity."

For her vanity and cruel treatment of little Dewdrop the proud red rose not only lost her jewel but her lover.

Mrs. Ascarini's Verdict Stands

County court convened this morning at 10 o'clock at which time Judge Fowler denied the motion of counsel in the Ascarini case to set aside the verdict and also the application for a certificate of reasonable doubt. Mrs. Ascarini was tried and found guilty last week in county court of cutting a neighbor at Glenside. She was indicted for assault in the second degree. The jury in its verdict asked that clemency be shown defendant. Judge Fowler sentenced her to the Auburn prison for women for a term of not less than one year or more than two years. At that time she was remanded to the custody of the sheriff until the motions of her counsel were decided by the court.

Court went into recess until May 11, at 10 o'clock.

The Rev. A. G. Skidmore of Phoenicia M. E. Church called on the Rev. K. M. Reynolds on Wednesday afternoon.

Coach Properly Defined

Now that the coach has become a large factor in motordom, the question is raised as to what is meant by the term. The Society of Automotive Engineers defines it:

"An enclosed single-compartment body, similar in general appearance to the sedan, with two close-coupled cross seats for four passengers. There is a luggage compartment or space for a trunk at the back of the body. There is no glass in the rear quarters. The conventional type has two doors only, the forward seats being divided and the right-hand seat tipping forward to give access to the rear cross-seat. Some models have two doors on the right-hand seat, there being two fixed cross-seats."

Politeness Pays

Employers in every line are laying stress upon the importance of politeness in business. They mean courtesy between fellow workers as well as courtesy to customers. We are all human, and courtesy makes life livable. A "grouch" makes everybody in a business organization uncomfortable, and he is a handicap to work and progress.—The Thrift Magazine.

American Bulldog

The American bulldog—or pit bull—because of the old sport of fighting them in pits—is one of the few breeds of dogs of distinctly American origin, and one of the first developed in this country. It is the product of a crossing of the English bulldog with the bull terrier, the subsequent introduction of an additional strain of English bulldog ancestry giving the American bulldog its weight and its shorter muzzle and larger head. But the breed now runs very true, and has for many years, and there is not much experimenting with it.

Chance for Experiment

It was between dances. They were dining in a dim corner.
"You have wonderful eyes," he murmured.
"Yes," she laughed expectantly.
"They are like stars," he went on. Her lips brushed his as he murmured: "They are so bright."
His hand fumbled in his pocket and he drew forth a glittering object. "They are so very bright," he repeated. He thrust his watch before her. "See if you can see the time in the dark."

Value of Self-Control

No man whose appetites are his masters can perform his duties with strictness and regularity. He that would be superior to external influences must become superior to his own passions. When the fire was general, sitting at supper with a plate of carrots before him, was selected by a large number to betray his trust, he asked the superintendent whether he that could sit on carrots was a man likely to suit the country.

THELMA

NO LIST of feminine names would be complete without the lovely Thelma. It is a Norse name, suggestive of the mythology of the Land of the Midnight Sun where Valkyries drive their gleaming chariots over the battlefield and conduct the glorious dead to their appointed places in Valhalla.

Little was known of Thelma and seldom was the name used outside of Scandinavia, until Marie Corelli in her sensational novel of that name presented the tragic love story of a beautiful Norwegian who was transplanted from the land of fjords to the center of London's smartest and most corrupt society.

From that time the number of Thelmas in England and America were legion. The name has had particular vogue in this country where the Scandinavian immigration is great. As a romantic and poetical name, Thelma is without equal, but her popularity has never extended beyond Scandinavian and English speaking countries.

Amber is Thelma's talismanic stone. It will guard her from all evil, especially from contagion. To wear it on a journey will preserve her from accident. Monday is her lucky day and 7 her lucky number.

Morpheus and Somnus

Morpheus, the ancient Greek god of dreams, was early pictured as an old man with wings. He held in his hands a vial or horn from which issued the sleep-producing vapor. Morpheus was the son of Somnus the god of sleep. The name Morpheus is derived from a form, and the name was given to the god of dreams because of the shapes or forms which he calls up before the dreamer.—Family Herald.

THE WREN

IT IS an omen of good luck to have a wren build its nest near the house. This, with the exception that it is also considered in some sections bad luck to kill a wren, appears to be the only survival in this country of the mystic character which pertains to the wren in Europe and has so long attached to it there that Professor Frazer considers the ceremonies attending the killing of a wren as sure to bring disaster to the slayer. But notwithstanding such belief the annual custom of "hunting the wren" was, to comparatively recent times, universal throughout Europe and exists in a modified form in many sections today, as, for instance, in the Isle of Man where on St. Stephen's day a wren is annually killed and buried after its body has been taken around the village and shown to the inhabitants.

The ceremony of killing the wren differed slightly in different countries but was everywhere rather elaborate. This annual slaying of an animal considered sacred and not to be killed at other times is a custom found among many peoples still living in a primitive state and was once common to primitive man. Frazer says: "The worshipful animal is killed with especial solemnity once a year and before or after death is carried from door to door that each of his worshippers may receive a portion of the divine virtue that is supposed to emanate from the dead or dying god. Religious processions of this sort must have had a great place in the ritual of European peoples in prehistoric times if we may judge from the numerous traces of them which have survived in folk-lore."

In Memoriam.

Cora Shuler Purcell, died May 4, 1925.

Dear Cora we are sad and lonely,
Since you went away,
It was God's will to take you,
So we could not bid you stay.
You bade no one a last farewell,
You said goodbye to none,
But in our hearts there is a longing,
If you only could come home,
As we place flowers on your grave,
They rather and decay,
But our love for you dear Cora,
Will never fade away.
Years have past but O how we miss you

Friends may think the wound is healed,
But little do they know the sadness
Which lies in their heart concealed.

The days are dark and friends seem few,
Dear Cora, how we long for you

Lotta's Spirit

An actor was talking about the famous Lotta Crabtree, who bequeathed her $400,000 estate to charity. He chuckled and went on:

"Lotta was funny to the end. I asked her one day to buy some oil shares—I was interested in oil at the time—and she said if she did that she'd be as ignorant as the old lady."

"An old lady," she said, "was visited by a young art student just back from Paris."

"There's a French man, ma'am," said the art student, "that I've brought you from Paris as a souvenir."

"The old lady looked at the coin and frowned."

"Oh," she said, "I'd rather you'd brought me one of them there Latin quarters."

ESSENTIAL

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WE WHO are lazy, we who shirk, I wonder is the trouble this? That we must scourge ourselves to work.

Because the larger view we miss? Why do we labor? Is it just To serve ourselves, and not the age? Are we as common as the dust In which we labor for our wage?

If so, we earn a poor reward, However great our wage may be. 'Tis not for wage men wear the sword, Or plow the land, or fell the tree, Who sees within the tree a hearth, The nourishment within the soil, Who wears a sword to free the earth, He needs no scourge to make him toll.

The world wheels forward like a car, Essential every working cog; Whate'er your labor, what you are, Behind a desk, upon a log, You play your necessary part In all the work there is to do; Go forward with uplifted heart, Because the world has need of you.

Your Health

By ANDREW F. CURRIER, M. D.

ULCER OF THE STOMACH

ULCER of the stomach comes to those who are anemic, who work hard and are poorly nourished, and occasionally to those whose gastric juices are acid and corrosive, or who have some kind of corrosive juice in the stomach from whatever source.

It may be a long time coming on, and may last for years. There are different kinds, in the sense that there are ulcers of different size, of different degrees of discharge and absorption, and of different degrees of poisoning and harmfulness in other ways.

In most cases the ulcer does not eat through or perforate the entire wall of the stomach; for that would almost certainly mean the occurrence in such cases of peritonitis, which usually would quickly have a fatal issue.

An accident which is not unusual with this disease and often is serious or fatal, is hemorrhage; and as it is wont to come on suddenly, without warning, it must always be anticipated and prepared for, when ulcer is known or suspected.

The treatment is principally dietetic, the diet being composed of simple substances which may be easily digested; meat and other foods which are digested in the stomach, with the exception of milk, being excluded.

Medical treatment is also useful in some instances, especially such medicines as may have an astringent and healing tendency, for example bismuth.

If the diagnosis is clearly made out, as operation by a skillful surgeon will result in a cure of the ulcer, but this does not mean that other ulcers may not develop.

There is usually but one ulcer, but others may be in the course of formation and it is quite possible to overlook them in the performance of an operation, if the corrosion has made only slight or moderate progress.

Many cases are cured by medical measures, and it by no means follows that every case which is discovered must be treated surgically.

Your Last Name

IS IT MAYO?

THIS is one of the many names derived from Matthew. Other forms still found are Maynew and Maynew. The French form of the same name is Mabile. The last names May and sometimes Mayo are said to be derived from these forms of Matthew.

In old records the name is spelled in a variety of ways. Mayow and Mayow are ways preserved in old records.

In this country the family was founded by a prominent Puritan minister. This was the Rev. John Mayo, who was the first minister of the Second church of Boston, taking that position in 1655. The Rev. Amory Dwight Mayo was also distinguished as an educator.

William Mayo also founded the Virginia family of the name. He was a pioneer surveyor of Virginia and the Barbadoes, who was born in England in 1680 or thereabouts. Robert W. Mayo, born in Powhatan, Va., in 1724, a writer, was a descendant of his.

In England the name of Mayo is well known among the aristocracy. The family name of these earls, however, is Bourke. There have been many distinguished and religious reformers among the English Mayos. The family is prominent in Herefordshire, from whence William Mayo, who founded the New England branch of the family, probably came. There is also a large family of the name located in Free in Cornwall.

Sacred Moonstone

The moonstone is believed by many to bring good fortune. In India this beautiful gem is considered as highly sacred and is never sold except on a yellow cloth, yellow being an especially sacred color.—New York World.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, May 4.—Industrial stocks moved within narrow price limits today in a market which, though active, was dominated by professional activity. The general trend of prices was upward, indicating that selling pressure from the outside public was comparatively small. But professionals were ready to take profits on the "bulge" and consequently rallies did not carry very far.

When industrialists refused to advance traders turned to railroad shares, which moved up from 1 to 2 points on concentrated buying. Active shares in the public utility group gained from 1 to 8 points. Consolidated Gas was a leader, exceeding all former price records for the year. North American Corporation was also strong.

Stocks of the motor and allied companies continued to push forward. Mack Trucks at 151 1/4 was only fractionally below its record high price for 1924.

Efforts to attract a "following" to the oil stocks was without much success, though a few of the prominent independent oils were marked up fractionally.

There was little activity in the independent steel shares, the coppers, the sugar stocks and the shipping stocks. Crucible Steel sold up about 2 points but Republic weak and United States Steel inactive. Radio Corporation was pushed down 2 more points to 56 on short selling.

American Woolen was steady despite the gloomy situation in the textile industry and the demoralization in the raw wool market.

Call money rates were marked down to 3 1/2 per cent, and time money rates were unchanged. Grain markets were steady, but cotton was unsteady.

Colonials Beat Pittsfield Pros

Morgan Has Good Day on the Mound With Ten Strikeouts—Colonials Scored Seven Runs and Blanked Visitors.

From the direction of the grand stand Sunday afternoon there came many threats against the lives of the purple-stockinged crew if they didn't drown out their New England opponents. It seems that these threats served their purpose for the New Englanders not only lost their ball game but they didn't even get a chance to sample the feeling that comes from trotting across the plate unchallenged.

The Pittsfielders were only two behind the locals' eight hits but they couldn't seem to fashion any of them into runs. The visitors made a good impression in the first inning, for King and Brace, second and third up, each fanned hard ones into the outfield. Then Bergeron sent out a slow grounder that Deegan could not manage to pick up. They Ryan got up with hopes of bringing his three mates in, but Deegan got his drive and touched second, thus giving himself credit for an unassisted double play.

Demers adorned the pitcher's area until the seventh session, when he was relieved by Brace. The newcomer's work was effective until the eighth inning, when his twirling was also undermined. Deegan led the rally in the eighth with one to center field. Brace then threw a wild one that advanced Deegan to third. Next in line were Coyle and Kelly, who were each let aboard through free tickets to first. McCue, who was next then buried one in the right field that Sullivan didn't judge just right. By the time the Bay Staters had recovered from this blow, McCue was perched on second and the damage had been done, for Coyle and Kelly had each completed their sprint.

When Morgan dropped off at the Fair Grounds he had his strikeout ball polished up in the shape and it certainly saw duty, for he fooled as many as ten of the Pittsfielders. The best that Brace could do along this line was two in two innings, while Demers slipped one across.

Kelly led with hits, making two to his credit, one of which was a two-sacker. The only other two-bagger was McCue's, who drove his out at the time when most needed, with two men on.

In the last session, the names of Hoffman, Davitt and Hinkley were added to the line-up, and Davitt, who completed the last out by stopping McCarty's grounder, was the only one who had a chance to contribute in the shut out.

McGraw's Illness Slight.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, May 4.—Reports that John McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, was seriously ill with influenza, were denied today by Dr. William Walsh, the attending physician. McGraw's illness consisted of a sore throat and a slight congestion of the sinus canal, the doctor said. He added that the trouble was so trivial that he expected the Giant leader to rejoin his team within several days.

Tagging Major League Bases

In keeping with the neutral tint of the Yankee situation in general, Gray left-handed Huggins' outfit scoreless, the Athletics winning, 1 to 0.

Hornsby waited two off the premises as the Cardinals broke their long losing streak with an 8 to 7 decision over the Cubs. Dickerson and Dyer almost blew the works in the ninth but Day stopped the Cubs in time.

Rain and the exigencies of train schedule forced the Indians and Tigers to call it an afternoon with the score tied at 6 to 6 in the seventh inning.

Dutch Reuther not only pitched the Red Sox into submission 7 to 2, but his hitting started a pair of Senatorial rallies in the third and fifth.

Robertson made only one wild pitch and gave only one pass but they came together and staked the Browns to a 3 to 2 verdict over the White Sox. Wingard also pitched ably and well while Sieler ran his hitting streak to 18 games with a single in the opening inning.

Mitchell was on the threshold of a 1 to 0 shut out with two out in the ninth when Wheat singled and Fournier blasted a home run, the Dodgers beating the Phils 2 to 1.

The Pirates rushed Luque to the wall with a four run rally in the ninth but Donohue came on in time to save the situation, the Red Sox edging into a 5 to 4 victory.
